

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

SANBORN NAMES KENT DREIER CHIEF FINANCIAL OFFICER

Colorado Springs, Colo., April 24, 2007 –John Copple, CEO of Sanborn, an industry leader in geospatial solutions, announced today that Kent A. Dreier has been named chief financial officer for the company. Mr. Dreier will oversee all financial functions for the company's multiple locations in North America and abroad. As an executive member of the Sanborn team, he will be working closely with Sanborn's senior management team to assist with strategic planning, operating plans, and information technology.

"We are pleased to have Mr. Dreier; he is a seasoned professional with an exemplary track record who knows finance and accounting from the ground up," said Copple. "He is the best qualified person for this job, and I have every confidence that he will be an excellent CFO."

Mr. Dreier brings over 19 years of experience in financial analysis and administration to Sanborn. Having most recently served as a director of financial planning and analysis for Vought Aircraft Industries, Inc., he was responsible for all aspects of financial planning and analysis activities. Prior to joining Vought Aircraft Industries, Mr. Dreier was the finance director/controller of Bombardier Flexjet. Additionally, he has held management positions for Invesco Realty Advisors, Deloitte and Touché, Fidelity Investments, and American Airlines.

Kent Dreier holds a Bachelor of Arts from Austin College, Sherman Texas, a Master of Business Administration in Finance from Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas, and is also a Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA).
